

ABSTRACT

A pick or plectrum, used to play stringed instruments, containing a flavoring agent, which is imparted to a player of such instruments, when the pick is placed into the player's mouth. The flavoring agent can be located onto or in the pick during the manufacturing process or flavoring may be achieved by affixing a laminate containing a flavoring agent to a standard pick.

5